

Providing health care together

Essentially, we all want the same. Health care that suits you, close-by and in a way that works for you. Therefore, we actively look for cooperation with health care providers and organisations that could be important for you. Together, we look at how to increase your health care wellbeing.

As of today, there are numerous collaborations and projects in which we cooperate with general practitioners, midwives, the local authorities, informal care support, home care organisations, municipal health services... The list goes on and on. And the good thing is; we emphasize different aspects but all want the same in the end. Supporting you at the moments that you need us, in a way that suits you. And preferably without you noticing that you go from one hand to the other.
